

SUMMER SCHOOL

HERE, ONLY THE BEST GET INTO SUMMER SCHOOL.

Comedy Central is inviting aspiring comedy writers of color to apply for an incredible opportunity. Comedy Central Summer School Program is an internship like no other. How many interns get to sit in on writers' meetings at The Daily Show and The Colbert Report rather than fetch those writers' coffee? How many interns get to pitch their ideas directly to the head of the development department?

But wait, there's more:

- Spend 8 weeks at Comedy Central world headquarters in scenic New York City.
- Get paid. (Seriously. That's not a typo.)
- Sit down for serious face-time with industry professionals and leaders—including program creators, network executives, television writers, stand-up comedians, successful Summer School interns... even Comedy Central stars like Daily Show correspondents Larry Wilmore and Assif Mandvi. Oh, and two guys named Jon Stewart and Stephen Colbert.
- Get hands-on experience in each of the following departments: Development, Digital, On-Air and Off-Air Creative.
- Make invaluable industry contacts and hone your writing skills while working side-by-side with some of the best in the comedy business, including a special "tour of duty" with the award-winning staffs of The Colbert Report and The Daily Show.
- Enjoy a balmy Manhattan summer in the comfort of our lovely, climate-controlled offices.

So, this summer, you can learn to make a great cup of decaf or you can get schooled by Comedy Central. The choice is yours.

For further information, please contact your school liaison to find out when applications are due at your school.

All submissions are due to Comedy Central by March 1st. Apply now!